BODYPAINING ACTIVITY

BODYPAINING BY VICTORIA GUGENHEIM

The award-winning bodypainter Victoria Gugenheim will do a bodypainting of the Council of Ex-Muslims logo in an historic public display.

CALLING ALL VOLUNTEERS WHO WANT TO MAKE A STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF EX-MUSLIMS:

We need you for a mass bodypainting by award-winning bodypainter Victoria Gugenheim on 24 July from 14:00-20:00 in London. The action is free and open to the public.

Participants will be painted as the logo of Council of Ex-Muslims and photographed from above. The public are welcome to join in.

FAQs:

Do I have to be nude?

No. Flesh coloured underwear can be worn; plain, beige coloured, brown or black bras can also be painted over.

Will I get cold?

The weather should be good, but bring a warm dressing gown!

Will the paint stain?

Although we recommend not wearing anything crisp new and white, no. The paint comes off in the shower with shower gel, and off of clothes with normal biological washing powder or capsules.

How long will it take?

From 14:00-20:00 hours, and painting groups of people will be done in stages, with multiple groups. If you're later, you'll be in group 2 or 3 for example, and not group 1.

Speakers

He is an Honorary Associate of the National Secular Society. His latest books are "The God Argument" (March 2013), "Friendship" (September 2013) and "The Challenge of Things" (March 2015). Anthony Grayling's new book "The Age of Genius" was published in March 2016.

ANI ZONNEVELD

FOUNDER OF MUSLIMS FOR PROGRESSIVE VALUES

is founder and President of Muslims for Progressive Values with chapters and affiliates in 12 countries and 19 cities. She has organised numerous interfaith arts and music festivals, participated in many interfaith dialogues and is a strong supporter of human rights and freedom of expression. She is the brainchild of Literary Zikr – a project that counters radical Islam on-line and co-editor of MPV's first book, an anthology titled "Progressive Muslim Identities – Personal Stories from the U.S. and Canada". She has contributed to many forewords and numerous anthologies too many to list; is a contributor for HuffingtonPost, OpenDemocracy and al-Jazeera, and recently gave her TEDx talk titled – Islam: As American As Apple Pie; and the subject of a documentary title "al-imam" featuring Ani's activism works. As an award winning singer/songwriter, she utilises the power of music and the arts in countering radicalism as she speaks-sings her message of social justice and peace from a progressive Muslim woman's perspective,. She is the first woman to release an English Islamic pop album in the U.S. in 2004. She was born and raised Muslim from Malaysia and is based in Los Angeles.

ANNIE LAURIE GAYLOR

CO-PRESIDENT OF THE FREEDOM FROM RELIGION FOUNDATION

is Co-President of the Freedom From Religion Foundation. She was also the editor of the organisation's newspaper, Freethought Today until 2015. Gaylor is the author of several books, including "Woe to the Women: The Bible Tells Me So", "Betrayal of Trust: Clergy Abuse of Children" and, as editor, "Women Without Superstition: No Gods – No Masters". In 2010, Gaylor received the Humanitarian Heroine award from the American Humanist Association. She has been an invited speaker at conferences including the 2012 Global Atheist Convention in Melbourne, Australia, and the regional conference of the Minnesota Atheists. She is on the speakers bureau of the Secular Student Alliance.

ARMIN NABAVI

FOUNDER OF THE ATHEIST REPUBLIC

is a former Muslim from Iran and the founder of the Atheist Republic, a non-profit organisation with over one million fans and followers worldwide that is dedicated to offering a safe community for atheists around the world to share their ideas and meet like-minded individuals. Armin was born and raised in the Islamic Republic of Iran and was indoctrinated thoroughly in the Muslim tradition. After almost losing his life in the pursuit of God's grace, the devastation of that event motivated him to seek a better understanding of the nature and concept of God and religious belief. Armin's journey led him to leave Islam and to become an atheist. Wanting to reach out to others like himself, Armin continues to examine religion as well as the notion of God and interact with others to engage in thought-provoking and educational discussion. Armin is the author of the bestselling book "Why There Is No God: Simple Responses to 20 Common Arguments for the Existence of God" which provides simple, easy-to-understand counterpoints to the most popular arguments made for the existence of God. Each chapter presents a concise explanation of the argument, followed by a response illustrating the problems and fallacies inherent in it. Whether you're an atheist, a believer or undecided, this book offers a solid foundation for building your own inquiry about the concept of God.

ARYAN ARIAN

PHOTOGRAPHER/FILMMAKER

is an Iranian-born independent photographer/filmmaker who lives in Montreal. He started photography and film-making at the age of 16 and received his B.A in Film Directing and M.A in Cinema Studies from the University of Art in Tehran. He moved to Canada in 2001 and after many years photography experiences in Iran and Canada, decided to expose his own uniquely-styled photography in 2012. Lonely women talking to the darkness, lonely women talking to the statues, lonely women talking to nature, lonely women looking for peace and freedom, lonely women tortured by religion (specifically Islam) are themes Arian has been attached to. He is the only Iranian photographer who is focusing in fine art nude photography and criticising religion with his unique style. The topics and the atmospheres in his artworks are about Loneliness, Women, Minimalism, Virulence, Absurdism, Death, Atheism, Tenebrism, Cultural Symbols, Nudity, Formalism, Eroticism and Criticising Religions. "Black Days, Red Nights" is his new exhibition in London (UK, 2017). It's a compilation of old and new photographs expressing his viewpoint on Islam, women, and freedom.

ASHER FAINMAN

PRESIDENT OF GOLDSMITHS ASH SOCIETY

is a student and President of Goldsmiths Atheist, Secular and Humanist Society. He is also co-founder of #Right2Debate campaign and an occasional writer.

BENJAMIN DAVID

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF OF CONATUS NEWS

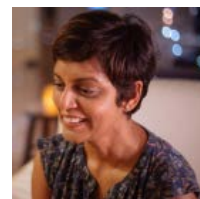

is Editor-in-Chief of Conatus News, a contributor to The Huffington Post, a philosophy academic, and was until recently the president of Warwick University Atheists, Secularists and Humanists. BONYA AHMED is a Visiting Research Scholar at UT Austin since Fall 2016, working on the rise of Islamic fundamentalism. She is also a published author and moderator at Mukto-mona blog, the first online platform for Bengali speaking freethinkers. Until recently, she worked as a Senior Director in the Finance industry in the USA. She is the widow of Avijit Roy, a well known writer, blogger, and activist who founded Mukto-mona. Roy and Ahmed were brutally attacked in the middle of the street by Islamists during a book signing trip to Dhaka, Bangladesh on February 26, 2015. Ahmed was gravely injured during the attack. She continues to work with international and local groups to help Bengali bloggers and activists and to seek justice for Avijit and others murdered. She is dedicated to drawing attention to the growing culture of impunity in Bangladesh.

ACTIVIST, WRITER AND BLOGGER AT MUKTO-MONA

CEMAL KNUDSEN YUCEL

CO-FOUNDER AND CHAIR OF EX-MUSLIMS OF NORWAY

was born and raised in Turkey. He was an Islamist and active in the youth branch of the Islamist movement, Milli Gorus, which is a part of the Muslim Brotherhood. He is now an ex-Muslim atheist activist and founder and chair of Ex-Muslims of Norway. He writes articles, participates in debates and conferences related to apostasy, blasphemy, women's status in Islam, Islamic reform, and political and social issues. He is helping to build the ex-Muslim community and promoting enlightenment work.

CHRIS MOOS

NATIONAL SECULAR SOCIETY COUNCIL MEMBER

is a secularist activist, and campaigns against sexism, racism and fundamentalism. He is a National Secular Society Council Member. As a PhD student, he was the president of the London School of Economics SU Atheist, Secularist and Humanist Society. In 2013, the LSE banned him from wearing a Jesus & Mo t-shirt, a ban he successfully challenged. He has also co-organised successful campaigns against the Universities UK gender segregation policy as well as the Law Society's Sharia Wills Practice Note. He writes for the Huffington Post and the Freethinker, and was nominated for the Irwin Prize for Secularist of the Year 2014.

DAMON CONLANMAGICIAN

is a magician, comedian, skeptic, and blogger from the West Midlands. His sarcastic sorcery often orbits the themes of atheism and skepticism, as well as political satire. He also likes to call himself a Jocular Prestidigitator because it has long words in it and makes him sound clever.

DAN BARKERCO-PRESIDENT OF THE FREEDOM FROM RELIGION FOUNDATION

is Co-President of the Freedom From Religion Foundation and co-host of Freethought Radio, a national weekly talkshow. He is a contributing editor of Freethought Today and is involved with the Foundation's state/church lawsuits. He regularly travels the country and the world giving lectures, performing concerts, and participating in debates with theists, many at college and university campuses. Prior to that, he was a preacher for 19 years. He became a teenage evangelist at age 15 and was ordained in 1975. He served as associate pastor in three California churches. He maintained an ongoing touring musical ministry, including eight years of full-time, cross-country evangelism. An accomplished pianist, record producer, arranger and songwriter, he worked with Christian music companies such as Manna Music and Word Music. Following five years of reading, Dan gradually outgrew his religious beliefs. He announced his atheism publicly in January 1984. He tells his story in the books "Losing Faith in Faith" (1992) and "Godless" (2008).

DAVE SILVERMANPRESIDENT OF AMERICAN ATHEISTS

is the current president of American Atheists, a non-profit organisation that supports the rights of atheists and the removal of expressions of religion in public in accordance with the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. He is the author of "Fighting God: An Atheist Manifesto for a Religious World", a firebrand manifesto from one of the most recognisable faces of atheism. In his book, Silverman - a walking, talking atheist billboard - discusses the effectiveness, ethics and impact of the in-your-face-atheist who refuses to be silent.

DEEYAH KHAN

is a critically acclaimed music producer and Emmy and Peabody award-winning documentary film director. She was born in Norway to immigrant parents of Pashtun and Punjabi ancestry. Her 2012 multi-award winning documentary "Banaz: A Love Story" chronicles the "honour killing" of a young British Kurdish woman killed in 2006 in London. Deeyah's second film the Bafta-nominated "Jihad" involved two years of interviews and filming with Islamic extremists, convicted terrorists and former jihadis. Her third film is on ex-Muslims, called "Islam's Non Believers". She has also received several awards for her work supporting freedom of expression, human rights and peace, including the Ossietzky prize by Norwegian PEN and the University of Oslo's Human Rights Award. She received the 2016 Peer Gynt Prize from the Parliament of Norway. Deeyah is also the CEO of Fuuse. One of the most recent Fuuse initiatives is "sister-hood", a digital magazine and a series of live events spotlighting the voices of women of Muslim heritage.

DJEMILA BENHABIB

was born in to a Greek Cypriot mother and an Algerian father, both scientists. She was raised in Oran, Algeria, where her parents were engaged in social and political causes. From an early age, she was aware of the poor condition of women in that country, but also of their hopes. She became an activist in the Parti de l'avant-garde socialiste. In the early 1990s, the oppressive Front islamique du salut rose to power. Djemila helped to organise demonstrations to oppose this movement. However, in 1994, death threats made by the Front islamique pour le djihad armé forced her and her family to flee to Paris. There, she organised groups that fought against the oppression of Algerian women – some of this oppression having reached as far as France itself. In 1997, she was awarded a scholarship to pursue a Master's degree at Quebec's Institut nationale de recherche scientifique. After that, she went on to pursue another Master's degree in political science and international rights. During these studies, she also served as the Canadian correspondent for the French-language Algerian newspaper El-Watan. In 2012, she received Le Prix international de la laïcité.

ELHAM MANEA

AUTHOR AND HUMAN RIGHTS CAMPAIGNER

is an Associate Professor specialised on the Middle East, a writer, and a human rights activist. She is a Fulbright scholar who holds a PhD degree in political science from the University of Zurich, Master degree in comparative politics from the American University in Washington D.C, and a Bachelor degree in political science from Kuwait University. She has published several academic and non-fiction books, including "The Arab State and Women's Rights: The Trap of Authoritarian Governance". She works at the Political Science Institute at the University of Zurich and is a consultant for Swiss government agencies and international human rights organisations. Recently, she has been appointed by the Swiss Federal Council as a Member of the Federal Commission for Women Affairs. Her concept of humanistic Islam was first published in a series of articles in Arabic. Her most recent book is "Women And Sharia Law: The Impact Of Legal Pluralism In The UK".

FARIBORZ POOYA

BREAD AND ROSES TV PRODUCER

was born in Iran. He took part in 1978-79 revolution, but moved to UK in 1979. He studied economics and politics at Oxford Brookes and Birkbeck College, University of London. He founded the Iranian Secular Society, was one of the founding members of the Council of Ex-Muslims of Britain and writes and comments on politics and secularism. He also co-hosts and produces a weekly political-social TV magazine, Bread and Roses TV in Persian and English.

FAUZIA ILYAS

FOUNDER OF ATHEIST & AGNOSTIC ALLIANCE PAKISTAN

is a Pakistani human rights activist and ex-Muslim. She became known for founding Atheist & Agnostic Alliance Pakistan where the state religion is Islam and apostasy leads to death. Since then, she has been a subject of several death threats. In 2015, Fauzia sought asylum in the Netherlands because her family members and religious fanatics threatened her life. Instead of protecting her, the authorities threatened to arrest her for blasphemy. Fauzia won the Kazimierz Lyszczyński Foundation Atheist of the Year (2017) in Warsaw.

GINA KHANONE LAW FOR ALL SPOKESPERSON

was born in Birmingham to Pakistani Muslim parents. Gina is a human rights activist and researcher. Personal experiences prompted Gina to break her silence in 2005 by speaking out in radio debates and writing to local Birmingham newspapers following a traumatic divorce and experience of living as a lone woman and parent in Birmingham. Gina focuses on two main subjects: the rise of pro-jihad ideologies within Muslim communities and the position and status of women within those communities. Gina believes these two twin phenomena to be symptomatic of deeper problems. After speaking out against Jihadism in Birmingham, Gina and her children were forced to leave her home after it was attacked. She is currently the co-Spokesperson of One Law for All.

GITA SAHGALDIRECTOR OF CENTRE FOR SECULAR SPACE

is a writer, journalist, film-maker and rights activist. She is currently Founder and Director of Centre for Secular Space. She was formerly Head of the Gender Unit at Amnesty International; she was suspended in 2010 after she was quoted criticising Amnesty for its high-profile associations with the Islamist Moazzam Begg, the director of a group called Cageprisoners. For many years she served on the board of Southall Black Sisters and was a founder of Women Against Fundamentalism and Awaaz: South Asia Watch. With Nira Yival Davis, she edited "Refusing Holy Orders: Women and Fundamentalism in Britain" (London, 1992). Among her articles are "Legislating Utopia? Violence Against Women, Identities and Interventions" in "The Situated Politics of Belonging". During the 1980s, she worked for a Black current affairs programme called "Bandung File" on Channel 4 TV. She made two films about the Rushdie affair, "Hullaballoo Over Satanic Verses" and "Struggle or Submission". She has also made two programmes for Dispatches Channel 4, "The Provoked Wife" on the case of Kiranjit Ahluwalia and "The War Crimes File" an investigation into allegations of war crimes committed by members of the Jamaat i Islami in Bangladesh in 1971.

GONA SAEDCO-FOUNDER OF KURDISTAN SECULAR CENTRE

is a women's rights activist from Iraqi Kurdistan. She was forced to flee Iraqi Kurdistan in 1998 due to her active involvement in campaigning for human and women's rights. Currently, she works as a Projects Manager at the Kurdish and Middle Eastern Women's Organisation in UK and is the Overseas Director of Kurdistan Secular Centre. Gona is a writer, commentator and public figure in Iraqi Kurdistan who is well known for her stance on equality and women's rights. She is a co-founder of several civil society and NGO organisations, including the Independent Women's Organisation in Iraqi Kurdistan in 1993, Kurdish and Middle Eastern Women's Rights Organisation in 1999 and recently the Kurdistan Secular Centre in 2015. Gona has over 25 years of experience as a human and women's rights activist and advocate. She has campaigned to abolish polygamy law in Iraqi Kurdistan in 2008, to lift the UN economic sanctions on Iraq during 1990s and against the wars on Iraq before and after 2003. In the UK, she has been an active member of campaigning for positive changes in government policies towards "honour based violence". Gona has been a key speaker at the 100th anniversary of International Women's Day in Denmark in 2010 presenting about "Women in Conflict Zones – Iraq as an example". She has been a speaker in many local and international conferences and in public debates and media interviews, including BBC 4 Women's Hour, London Live TV and BBC World Service discussing issues facing Middle Eastern women and their struggle for freedom and equality.

has written extensively for stage, screen and radio. Her first play "Behsharam" (Shameless) broke box office records at Soho Theatre and the Birmingham Rep in 2001. Her play "Behzti" (Dishonour) was sensationally closed in December 2004, after playing to packed houses at the Birmingham Rep. The play, which explored sexual abuse in the British Sikh community caused controversy as it was set in a Gurdwara. Members of the local Sikh community objected to the play and demonstrations culminated in a riot which led to theatre bosses closing the show – a move which launched a national debate about artistic censorship and multiculturalism. Death threats forced Gurpreet into hiding. In 2005, "Behzti" won the Susan Smith Blackburn Prize. In 2006, the play was translated into French and did sell-out tours in France and Belgium. "Behzti" was translated into Italian in 2012 and was performed in Bari, Italy. In 2010 her follow up to "Behzti" - Behud (Beyond Belief) - was co-produced by Soho Theatre and Coventry Belgrade and shortlisted for the John Whiting Award. Recent credits include "Khandan", Royal Court, "Fourteen", Watford Palace Theatre and the feature film "Everywhere and Nowhere". She is currently under commission to the Birmingham Rep, is developing two television projects for the BBC and is a member of the writing team of "The Archers".

HALIMA BEGUM

EX-MUSLIM FEMINIST RESEARCHER AND BLOGGER

is an ex-Muslim activist and blogger. After a decade-long journey from Sunni and Shia Islam over Islamism to Secular Liberalism, Halima wrote a study on "British ex-Muslims: Negotiating the Essential and the Revolutionary", which won the Best Dissertation Award at Birkbeck University in 2014. Halima is keen to promote freedom of expression and uphold rights of personal autonomy. She has written for Sedaq, sister-hood Magazine and Double-Bind. She hopes to share her journey and help others find the best way they can be true to themselves and live freely.

HASSAN RADWANAGNOSTIC MUSLIM KHUTBAHS BLOG

graduated with 1st class honours in Arabic from SOAS University of London in 1984, his specialist subjects being Quranic commentary and Pre-Islamic poetry. For 3 years, he served as president of SOAS Students Islamic Society. He spent 15 years as a teacher at Islamia Primary School in London and has written four books for children of Muslim parents as well as leading an Islamic circle. After going through a period of questioning & doubting his faith he first identified as an ex-Muslim but eventually came to identify as an Agnostic Muslim and campaigns for radical reform within Islam – in particular the need to recognise the Quran's human origin. He recently translated the book "My Ordeal with the Quran" from Arabic to English and founded the Agnostic Muslims and Friends Facebook group. He runs the Agnostic Muslim Khutbahs blog. Hassan is also an active member of the Inclusive Mosque Initiative in London.

HOUZAN MAHMOUDCULTURE PROJECT CO-FOUNDER

is a women's rights campaigner, public lecturer and co-founder of Culture Project, a transnational project formed recently to raise awareness about feminism and gender in Kurdistan and diaspora. She has an MA in Gender Studies from SOAS, London University. She worked as a representative of the Organisation of Women's Freedom in Iraq for many years. She was born in Iraqi Kurdistan in 1973 and currently resides and works in London. Her articles have been published in The Independent, The Guardian, The Tribune, The New Statesman and others. Houzan has led many campaigns internationally, including campaigns against the rape and abduction of women in Iraq, and against the imposition of Islamic sharia law in Kurdistan and the Iraqi constitution. She has also led other campaigns against so called honour killings, and against violations of freedom of expression. She is the winner of 2016 Emma Humphrey's Memorial Award.

IMAD IDDINE HABIBFOUNDER OF COUNCIL OF EX-MUSLIMS OF MOROCCO

is a Moroccan atheist threatened for his atheism. He is founder of the Council of Ex-Muslims of Morocco, the first public atheist organisation in a country with Islam as the state religion. The Council of Ex-Muslims of Britain declared May 15 "International Imad Day" in order to galvanise support for his case. His case was also highlighted in a 2013 CEMB report on the political and legal status of apostates in Islam. He is currently co-Spokesperson of Council of Ex-Muslims of Britain.

INNA SHEVCHENKO

is leader of FEMEN, topless activists against various manifestations of patriarchy, including dictatorship, religion, and the sex industry. She has published "Anatomie de l'oppression" with Pauline Hillier. She was kidnapped and threatened by the Belarus KGB in 2011 and was given political asylum in France. In July 2013, Shevchenko was the main inspiration for a new French stamp depicting Marianne. In December 2012, the French magazine Madame Figaro included Shevchenko in its list of the world's top 20 iconic women of the year. Shevchenko is a speaker at conferences and a columnist for the international press. She was a speaker at a debate on freedom of speech in Copenhagen on 14 February 2015 with cartoonist Lars Vilks. She was speaking about an illusion that in Western Europe people can fully enjoy freedom of speech when a terrorist opened fire in the lobby of the cultural centre, where the debate took place. Surviving the attack, Shevchenko later said, "Liberal voices should be louder than Kalashnikovs".

IRAM RAMZAN

JOURNALIST AND FOUNDER OF SEDAA

is a reporter and freelance journalist based in Greater Manchester. She founded Sedaa (Our Voices), a platform for progressive/secular voices of Muslim heritage, challenging the narratives surrounding Islam and extremism.

ISMAIL MOHAMED

EGYPTIAN ATHEIST AND FOUNDER OF BLACK DUCKS TALK SHOW

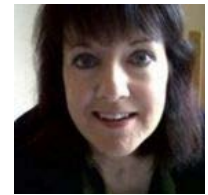

is the first Egyptian to publicly announce his atheism on national television. He started The Black Ducks, an inspiring Talk Show on Youtube that interviews atheists and non-religious individuals from the Arab world. It aims to achieve a secular society in the Middle East and North Africa and offer solace and courage to those who are atheists in secret so they may know they are not alone in the world. Many share their stories of struggle on The Black Ducks. The channel is the number one platform for Arab atheists and apostates throughout the region. Mohamed launched his project in 2013, after the removal of the Muslim Brotherhood from power, a time when many Egyptians feared for their freedom.

JANE DONNELLY

ATHEIST IRELAND'S HUMAN RIGHTS OFFICER

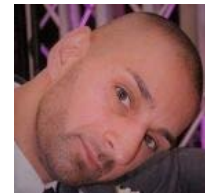

is Atheist Ireland's Human Rights Officer. Atheist Ireland is an Irish advocacy group that promotes atheism and reason over superstition and supernaturalism, and an ethical, secular society where the State does not support or finance or give special treatment to any religion. Atheist Ireland has also worked against blasphemy laws, and is part of a Coalition to Repeal the Eighth Amendment. Jane also runs the website teachdontpreach.ie, which records religious discrimination in Irish schools and advises parents on how to tackle it.

JIMMY BANGASH

INTEGRATIVE COACH / EX-MUSLIM

is a gay British ex-Muslim Pakistani living in the UK. He grew up in a traditional Pashtun family in London where he struggled with both the homophobia and ardent misogyny within his community. He has written poems and prose about these experiences; many of which have been published on Sedaa. As an LGBT ex-Muslim activist, he is committed to unbridling the reins of patriarchy on gays and women of Muslim heritage. As a coach, he seeks to empower those individuals liberated from problematic ideologies to live a life of authenticity, self-assurance and self-expression.

RICHARD DAWKINS

ENGLISH ETHOLOGIST, EVOLUTIONARY BIOLOGIST AND AUTHOR

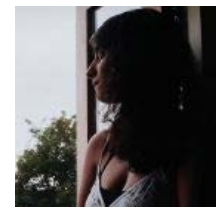

is an English ethologist, evolutionary biologist and author. He is an emeritus fellow of New College, Oxford, and was the University of Oxford's Professor for Public Understanding of Science from 1995 until 2008. Dawkins first came to prominence with his 1976 book "The Selfish Gene", which popularised the gene-centred view of evolution and introduced the term meme. With his book "The Extended Phenotype", published in 1982, he introduced into evolutionary biology the influential concept that the phenotypic effects of a gene are not necessarily limited to an organism's body, but can stretch far into the environment. In 2006, he founded the Richard Dawkins Foundation for Reason and Science. Dawkins is an atheist, and is well known for his criticism of creationism and intelligent design. In his most popular book, "The God Delusion", published in 2006, Dawkins contends that a supernatural creator almost certainly does not exist and that religious faith is a delusion. He has been awarded many prestigious academic and writing awards and he makes regular television, radio and Internet appearances, predominantly discussing his books, his atheism and his ideas and opinions as a public intellectual.

SHELLEY SEGAL

is a singer-songwriter involved in secular activism. Her first record, "An Atheist Album" is a passionate response to dogmatic belief, inequality, religious oppression and the idea that only the devout can be grateful and good. The record gives a voice to the often underrepresented views of non-religious people, the fastest growing minority in many countries. It also creates opportunities to discuss issues of secularism with the mainstream media. Her voice has taken her around the world including England, Australia and ten tours of the United States. She has released seven recording projects of her own and runs independent record label True Music where she works with other artists. An award winning songwriter, powerful performer and explicit story-teller, Shelley uses her music not only to express the way she sees the world but to create the world she wants to see.

It is a platform to boost dialogue between science and politics.

VICTORIA GUGENHEIM

AWARD-WINNING BODY ARTIST

is an award-winning body artist. She is passionate about the necessity of and is merging, art with science. Art and science share a common ancestor with the human imagination, and without imagination there can be no hypothesis. It was the first visual, material, tangible "What if?" that humanity had, and it started 300,000 years ago deep in the caves near the twin Zambini Rivers. Victoria's art has been a lifelong quest of "de-othering" people through art, public speaking and personal aesthetic choice. Her art ranges from bodypainting, makeup, photography, sculpture, performances, installations, digital art, clothing design, drawing and painting with science and technology. She uses bodypainting as a way of empowering the human spirit, giving the person painted a new found confidence that can be life changing.

WALEED AL HUSSEINI

WRITER AND FOUNDER OF COUNCIL OF EX-MUSLIMS OF FRANCE

"Rien n'est pardonné" (Nothing is forgiven) by Vincent Coen and Guillaume Vandenberghe describes the fate of Zineb El Rhazoui, activist and journalist, absent from the offices of Charlie Hebdo on the day of the murderous attack who became the most protected woman in France. She is a former columnist for the Paris-based satirical magazine Charlie Hebdo. She did not attend the editorial meeting of 7 January 2015 when terrorists burst in and murdered her colleagues, as she was in Morocco at the time. She is the author of several books: "13" and "Detruire Le Fascisme Islamique" (Destroy Islamic Fascism). She is a passionate critic of Islam and a prominent secularist and human rights campaigner, speaking publicly around the world about free speech.

Celebrating apostasy and blasphemy in London in July

The Freethinker interviews Maryam Namazie and Marieme Helie Lucas ahead of the International Conference on Freedom of Conscience and Expression in the 21 Century scheduled to take place in London between July 22 and 24, 2017.

Why organise an international conference on free conscience and expression?

Maryam Namazie: Atheists and freethinkers are targeted by Islamists and religious-Right movements across the globe. Despite the brutal attacks, blasphemy and apostasy laws are often legitimised.

Even where no such laws exist, there is a chorus of voices insisting that freedom of expression and conscience have limits, particularly when it comes to Islam. "Hurt" sensibilities are almost always deemed more important than threats, intimidation, censorship, violence and even murder. And victims are blamed time and time again whilst perpetrators pose as victims.

On the tenth anniversary of the Council of Ex-Muslims of Britain, the conference aims to bring together the largest international gathering of ex-Muslims and freethinkers as a show of strength to reaffirm the right to think and live outside the confines imposed by religion and the religious-Right.

Many of the speakers are on the frontlines of the tsunami of atheism and freethought that has taken hold of societies under Islamist influence with social media doing to Islam what the printing press has done to Christianity. When dissenters continue to be threatened, silenced, not platformed, intimidated and even killed for rejecting and criticising Islam, a celebration of apostasy, blasphemy and the free word are historical tasks.

Key issues such as women's resistance, the veil, religious morality, religion in the law and state, identity politics, communalism and multiculturalism, Islamophobia and secularism as a human right will be discussed.

The conference will highlight and honour dissenters such as the Bangladeshi bloggers; Raif Badawi sentenced to 10 years in prison for blogging and Ahmad Al-Shamri sentenced to death for atheism in Saudi Arabia; ex-Muslim atheist H Farook hacked to death in India; 21 year old Sina Dehghan sentenced to death for "insulting the prophet" in Iran; Ayaz Nizami and Rana Noman arrested on blasphemy charges and 23 year old Mashal Khan lynched by a mob at his university in Pakistan ...

The gathering – labelled the "Glastonbury of Freethinkers" – will stand out, loud and proud to remind the world that the freedom of conscience and expression are also for those who reject and criticise religion and the religious-Right. And that the demand for these freedoms are universal.

The conference focus is on freedom from religion; why is that so important and relevant in the right to freedom of conscience? What is link between freedom of expression and right to criticise and leave religion?

Marieme Helie Lucas: Freedom of expression is a consequence, a corollary of the fundamental right of freedom of conscience. Freedom of conscience includes the right to believe and the right not to believe – two sides of the same right that cannot be delinked from one another. Freedom of conscience is absolute. No religion or state can put limits on it.

But while, today, the right to believe is rarely questioned – and when it is, human rights organisations run to the rescue of endangered believers, this is unfortunately not exactly the case with the right not to believe, despite the fact that non-believers in many places are threatened by the rising religious-Right, especially but not exclusively by the Muslim far-Right best represented today by Daesh and the likes.

It is interesting to note that freethinkers are not threatening anyone because of their beliefs; still they are the ones asked to 'respect' religions and their followers. Their right to freedom of expression is challenged.

Meanwhile, the religious-Right is indeed curtailing the rights of non-believers and/or followers of other religions, and in many places assassinating them, but no one asks them to 'respect' different religious beliefs or the absence of religious beliefs.

This inequality of treatment should be of concern to all as it is a clear threat to democracy and to equality between all citizens.

Maryam Namazie: It's also important to note that the right to conscience and expression are in particular rights for those who think differently. As Rosa Luxemburg said: 'Freedom is always the freedom of dissenters'. In a world where religion is deemed sacred and the religious-Right have power to legally persecute and execute freethinkers and atheists, and whip up mobs to kill at will, defending the freedom to criticise and reject religion is a matter of life and death for the innumerable.

Criticism of Islam is often labelled Islamophobic as are ex-Muslim events and conferences. Your point of view?

Marieme Helie Lucas: Who, today, would label "Christianophobic" any meeting of people who were born into a "Christian country" and/or a "Christian family" and are now freethinkers?

So the real question becomes: why is Islam singled out among all religions and for what reason(s); why are freethinkers who are born into Muslim contexts (still abusively labelled "Muslims") discriminated against when it comes to exercising their fundamental right of freedom of conscience? Whose vested interests is this discrimination serving? Why are the Left and the Far-Left buying into this illogical reasoning when it comes to Islam and Muslims, while they would not if it were Christians, Hindus, Buddhists, Jews, etc ... What hidden racism lies behind this singling out of Islam and Muslims?

Maryam Namazie: Clearly, criticism of religion and the religious-Right is not the same as bigotry against believers. Islamophobia is a political term that aims to scaremonger people into silence and stop criticism of Islam/Islamism by using rights and anti-racist language. In Saudi Arabia, Iran, Turkey, Pakistan... freethinkers are accused of blasphemy and apostasy and imprisoned/killed. Here in Europe, accusations of Islamophobia are used to impose de facto blasphemy laws and silence much needed criticism.

Historically, criticism of religion has been key for human progress and it remains so today. Those buying into accusations of Islamophobia effectively side with the Islamist narrative at the expense of dissenters.

With the rise of far-Right populism and racism against migrants and Muslims, should such a conference be held?

Marieme Helie Lucas: Insofar as we define Muslim fundamentalism as a far-Right political movement using religion to cover up their political goals, we are simply facing two far-Rights: the "traditional" one, populist, xenophobic, racist; and the new one which is taking the form of the virulent religious-Right. I do not see any reason why we should challenge one of them without challenging the other too.

Let's note in passing that the question itself testifies to the confusion of concepts that prevails among progressive people today: it is labelling "Muslims" – without ever inquiring about their religious beliefs – all sorts of people of migrant descent. Just ask Christians from the Middle East if they do not face here the same racism as their Muslim colleagues; just ask Indians if they are not confronted with similar rejection than their Pakistani fellows ...

It seems very obvious that we should, all together, combat simultaneously the "traditional" far-Right and the new "religious-Right". They reinforce each other and feed on each other; they need each other in order to mobilise their troops.

Is there any hope given the rise of the religious-Right everywhere and freethinkers being killed and imprisoned by Islamist states & mob violence?

Marieme Helie Lucas: We are undoubtedly living in a very difficult period of time and we are likely heading towards an even more difficult one. Political clarity is badly needed. The first step would be to fully understand and expose the political nature of the religious-Right, of its programme and its undemocratic theocratic goals.

This conference will give a voice to those who are slaughtered by the religious-Right. Their voice is never heard. All we can do is speak up for their rights ... and try and defend ours, here and now.

Maryam Namazie: If anyone feels there is no hope, it is only because they are not familiar with the resistance. Everyone knows Khamenei, Bin Laden, al-Baghdadi but why are Raif Badawi, Avijit Roy, Nadia El Fani, Fauzia Ilyas, Waleed Al Hussein or Zineb el Rhazoui not household names? This conference is the conference of the resistance and resistance to totalitarianism always brings hope.
